Moving Forward

Now that more is known about COVID-19 and how to help prevent its transmission, starting June 15th, Jennifer Ryan Design looks forward to resuming a modified work schedule while maintaining a focus on safety. As your designer, if needed, I will make myself more available remotely on Zoom, Facetime, or other media. As your contractor, I will continue to work/ manage all remodeling projects but will schedule only myself plus one sub at a time on job sites.

My goal is to make your space as beautiful and functional as originally planned while helping to keep you and all my team members safe. Although the way in which we work will change, the excellent level of attention Jennifer Ryan Design has been providing will not. I look forward to remodeling your space and hope that we can work together to make the best out of a challenging time.

Stay safe, stay healthy,

Jennifer

2. Wear face coverings when entering and exiting the property.
3. Maintain a safe social distance of at least six feet whenever possible.
4. Wear protective gloves when entering and exiting your home, and when possible, as they work.
5. Use an appropriate hand sanitizer as frequently as practical.
6. Maintain clean surfaces in the work area and wipe down these surfaces when leaving the job site for the day.

What can you do?

1. If possible, provide a separate, less used entrance for contractors to enter/exit the job site.
2. Wear face coverings at all times when near a Jennifer Ryan Design team member or walking through the worksite and entry/exit paths.
3. Consider having a rental porta potty placed on your property for team members to use (please inquire).
4. Maintain the appropriate social distance of at least ten feet from Jennifer Ryan Design team members whenever possible.
5. Isolate the work area and entrance/exit paths (please inquire).
6. During and after your project is completed, hire a professional cleaning service to disinfect all surfaces.
